

TotTag 2

Infant monitoring tag with dual tamper detection

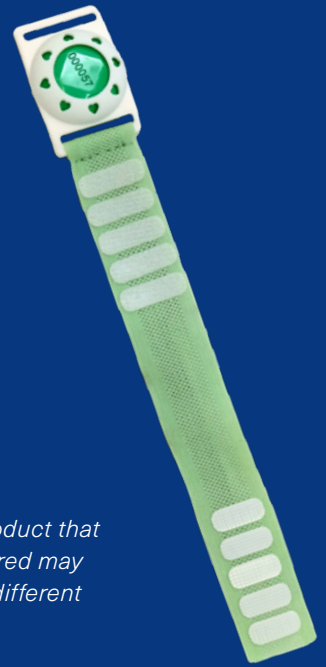

The TotTag 2 is an active tag designed for monitoring newborn infants, and features 12 months of battery life. The tag transmits a periodic location beacon and contains a low frequency receiver for detecting signals from GuardRFID® Tag Exciters.

The TotTag is an active tag designed for monitoring newborn infants, and features 12 months of battery life. The tag transmits a periodic location beacon and contains a low frequency receiver for detecting signals from GuardRFID® Tag Exciters.

TotTags work with the GuardRFID AllGuard® software with TotGuard® support to provide real-time location services. The tag's built-in dual tamper detection capability allows the software to generate an alarm if the tag is tampered or removed from the infant, while minimizing false alarms caused by normal infant care. The AllGuard software can be configured to control doors to speed newborns to scheduled medical examinations or protect babies from suspicious activity.

The band is carefully designed with clinicians in mind. The tag and band system was tested to ensure ease-of-use for nurses and comfort of infants.
